

CHILD STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE DIES AT GRADY

Frances Hinds, 10, Receives Fatal Injuries When Hit by Machine of James Avery.

DRIVER TAKES GIRL TO CITY HOSPITAL

Declares Accident Was Unavoidable — Police Seeking Accident Victim Who Disappeared.

An impulsive dash from behind a parked automobile, which hid her vision, into the street in front of her home, Friday night cost the life of Frances Hinds, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Hinds, of 337 Allene avenue, when she was struck and knocked down by an automobile driven by James Avery, of 21 Helena street. A rib, which was broken, had penetrated the little girl's lung and she died several hours later at Grady hospital.

Avery, who declared he was not driving his automobile faster than eight miles an hour, picked up the child and rushed with her to Grady hospital, where heroic but vain efforts were made to save her life. With him in the car were Mrs. James Avery and Avery's brother, O. S. Avery.

Accident Unavoidable. Avery told police he could not avoid the child, as she rushed into the street, and that she, in fact, ran into his car.

W. J. Orr, of 16 Hightower street, who was sitting in the parked car from behind which the victim of the accident suddenly appeared, corroborated Avery's statement. He helped pick up the injured child and took her parents to the hospital.

Police who are investigating the accident had not made a case against Avery Friday night.

Accident Victim Disappears. Atlanta police are investigating a collision between an automobile and a motorcycle, which occurred Friday night at the intersection of Hurt street and Euclid avenue, in which the motorcycleist is believed to have been seriously injured. The wheel, badly damaged, was found by the officers near the scene of the accident.

According to witnesses of the accident, the rider of the motorcycle was picked up by unidentified persons in the automobile, who sped away. Hospitals of the city have been combed but no trace of the victim had been found late Friday night.

A complete description of the automobile was furnished officers and arrests on charges of reckless driving are expected shortly, police stated.

Miss Evelyn Arrested. Miss Evelyn Jackson, 26, of 231 Courtland street, was arrested Friday night and placed under $300 bond on charges of reckless driving as the result of an accident on Courtland street, in which the car she was driving crashed into a mule ridden by James Reese, negro, of Chamblee. The negro received bruises and lacerations about the body. The mule was knocked to the pavement.

Call Officers Huguenot and Ballard investigated the accident and made the case.

After medical aid had been rendered at Grady hospital the negro was allowed to go home.

TWO MISSING MEN BELIEVED SLAIN

Car Battered With Blood Found in Mountains—Pair May Have Been Victims of Feud.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 26.—Dr. W. D. Mason, veterinarian, and Lawrence Bowman, said to be a "spotter" for federal prohibition officers, disappeared last night on Signal Mountain and are believed by officers to have been killed by members of a gang of moonshiners and feudists infesting that section.

Dr. Mason was called to the mountain to treat a horse and Bowman, now under charges of shooting a mountaineer during a recent raid on a still, agreed to accompany him. This afternoon, Dr. Mason's car was found in a wild part of the mountain, battered with blood, with the hats of the missing men lying near the machine. Bowman's hat had the appearance of being stamped on the ground.

Two deputy sheriffs were hurried to the scene following the receipt of news of finding the car, and Sheriff Tom Selman is preparing to dispatch his entire force to the mountain at once. A feud has existed between the Godsey and Bowman clans on the mountain for several months, following the killing of one of the Bownmans by a Godsey, and Luther Bowman has been assisting the prohibition officers in raids on stills on the mountain. Some weeks ago, Agent W. E. Grubb, and his brother, John Grubb, were shot on the streets of Chattanooga by Sam Godsey, now out on bond. A few days ago, during a raid in which Grubb and Lawrence Bowman took

MONEY IN PRISON PLOT WAS 'LOAN', WITNESS ASSERTS

Haar Declares Former Deputy Warden Fletcher Refused $5,000 Offered as Christmas Gift.

SARTAIN AND RIEHL HERE TO TESTIFY

Brother of Willie Haar States That $3,500 Paid Was "Legitimate Loan" Made to Fletcher.

Savannah bootlegger prisoners serving sentences for violating the federal prohibition law were feature witnesses at Friday's session of the trial of L. J. Fletcher and Father Thomas P. Hayden, former officials of the federal prison, and headed by Willie Haar and Graham Baughn, they told details of alleged payments, $10,500 for which they received special privileges. Willie Haar said the $10,500 was a "legitimate loan" he had made to former Warden Albert E. Sartain and former Deputy Warden Fletcher, while Baughn said the amount represented $1,500 each for seven Savannah prisoners who were to be given "easy assignments" for this money.

Willie Haar's testimony related to the same transaction on which former Warden Sartain and Lawrence Riehl, of Columbus, Ohio, his friend, were convicted of bribery charges last February. Under cross examination Willie Haar admitted he did not know that Fletcher ever received any money for granting special privileges and that he had never given Fletcher any money for special privileges. He said Father Hayden had visited Savannah and arranged for payment of $10,500 which was made to Riehl, ostensibly for Sartain, it was set out.

Haar's Brother Called. Ernest Haar, Savannah lawyer, brother of Willie Haar, but not involved in any of the liquor charges, testified that he paid Fletcher $3,500 on behalf of his brother. He declared he understood the payment was part of a "legitimate loan" Willie Haar was making to Sartain and Fletcher, and part of the money was to be used by Fletcher in opening an ice business in Miami, Fla.

According to Willie Haar's testimony the $3,500 payment was a part of the $10,500 to be paid Sartain. He said Fletcher offered to give a note for the $3,500 and that his brother, Ernest Haar, went from the federal prison to Atlanta to get blank notes to be filled out for the money. Willie Haar said he then suggested that no notes be given until after the investigation, then under way, was concluded. Willie Haar declared that Fletcher had offered to put up stock in the ice company as collateral for the loan.

"I looked on the payment of this money as a loan and believe now it was a loan. I believe that Fletcher will pay the money back just as he promised. I was the one who suggested that no note be given for the money at that time," he testified.

When this transaction was under way Willie Haar stated that Fletcher had told him he had resigned as deputy warden and that the resignation had been accepted. Haar said he and Mammie Kessler had prepared to give Fletcher a Christmas present of $5,000.

BURBANK BRANDS EVOLUTION CASE AS HUGE JOKE

Chicago, June 26.—The Dayton (Tenn.) evolution trial is "a great joke," according to Luther Burbank. His opinion was expressed in a letter to Clarence Darrow, the Chicago lawyer who will defend John T. Scopes, when the young professor is tried shortly in Dayton, Tenn., for teaching evolution in the public schools.

Darrow had planned to have Burbank add the weight of his testimony to the defense of young Scopes, but the letter, awaiting him when he returned to Chicago from a conference at Dayton, said it would be impossible. Burbank said the trial would be a joke, and that he could not be present because of other responsibilities.

GIRL, 16, IS HELD IN AUTO ACCIDENT DEATH INQUIRY Rock Hill, S. C., June 26.—Miss Olive McLean, 16, is held in the city jail here without bond pending a coroner's investigation of the death of Walter, 4-year-old son of Pearce L. Robinson, who died today shortly after being struck by an automobile alleged to have been driven by the girl.

CALLAUX PLAN GETS APPROVAL FROM DEPUTIES

Painleve and Cabinet Had Threatened To Resign Unless Plan Was Approved by Chamber.

GOVERNMENT GETS LARGE MAJORITY

Bank of France Authorized To Issue Six Billion More Francs for Benefit of State's Credit.

BY JOHN O'BRIEN.

Paris, June 27.—(Saturday.)—Finance Minister Callaux's plan to prevent bankruptcy of the French government was accepted by the chamber of deputies early this morning by a vote of 328 to 119.

The vote was one of confidence in the Painleve government, rather than on the financial program itself, and it was taken after Painleve had announced his cabinet would resign unless the chamber accepted Callaux's program.

The project was passed by the chamber, article by article, but Painleve placed the question of confidence in his cabinet on the second article, which provides for approval of previous Bank of France advances and authorizes a new issue of 6,000,000,000 francs to the state.

In Session All Night. Again the chamber voted confidence, 373 to 30, on the third article, providing for the bond consolidation loan. One hundred and sixty deputies abstained from voting. Most of them were socialists.

The deputies sat until dawn. Callaux chose further inflation as a remedy instead of the capital levy plan advocated by the socialists and bitterly opposed by the bourgeois. Painleve and Callaux explained in speeches preceding the vote that the 6,000,000,000 francs inflation authorized by the minister's financial program was to meet immediate payments only, and did not preclude an inflationist policy, but instead was the only means whereby greater inflation could be avoided.

Bill Goes To Senate. The bill now will go to the senate for immediate action in an effort to make it a law before the house opens Monday.

Adoption of Callaux's program is the last years of the war in prison, charged with treason, and who escaped a firing squad only by fortunate delay in his trial. He was deprived of citizenship and exiled from Paris and the other principal cities of France when his trial finally was held, only to be relieved of exile and reinstated to citizenship by the late Herriot government. Then Callaux was summoned to a cabinet position by Paul Reynaud, in a speech, disapproved by the chamber, in a wild chase after reparations gold.

Callaux's Talk Brief. Placed by peculiar circumstances in a role of dramatic potentialities for political aggrandizement such as few men ever can hope to achieve, the late Callaux, in a speech, disapproved by the chamber, in a wild chase after reparations gold.

Callaux spoke briefly, with the mannerisms of a second-rate actor, raising and lowering his effeminate voice producing exaggerated gestulations. He seemed not to have studied his speech and occasionally was compelled to read from hastily jotted notes. Dressed in black, a departure from his usual colorful garb, Callaux's sombre garments, bald head and perspiring hands created an odd picture.

"I hope to relieve the treasury of the floating debt that is crushing it," Callaux said. "I do not want to let my country fall into the abyss of inflation. I do not want a moratorium, either, because that would compromise

SHEPHERD FREED OF CHARGE OF MURDERING FOSTER-SON AMIDST STORM OF CHEERS

ANTI-PISTOL BILL TO BE INTRODUCED IN LEGISLATURE

GOLUCKE IN HOUSE AND FOSTER IN SENATE WILL SPONSOR IMPORTANT MEASURE.

RESULT OF DRIVE BY CONSTITUTION

State-Wide Sentiment Against Constitutional Protection of Outlaw Gun Growing.

A bill designed to outlaw the deadly hip-pocket pistol in Georgia will be introduced during the present session of the legislature, it was learned Friday. This measure will be introduced in the house by Representative Alvin G. Golucke, of Tallapoosa county, and in the senate by Senator Albert Foster, of Madison.

This is one of the most important measures which will come before the 1925 general assembly, inasmuch as it is designed to do away with promiscuous carrying of deadly weapons in Georgia, a practice which practically all court judges have declared is responsible for the great proportion of homicides in this state.

The two measures are directly the result of The Constitution's highly successful campaign staged early this year to arouse public sentiment against the menace of the concealed pistol. At that time thousands of citizens in all parts of Georgia, legislators, judges, civic organizations, religious orders and scores of others of a similar nature entered definite protest against the pistol law method of controlling "pistol-toting," and voiced hearty approval of The Constitution's fight for more stringent regulations.

Among the scores of legislators expressing hearty sympathy with the proposal were Representative Golucke and Senator Foster, who formally announced several months ago that they would introduce measures at this session of the legislature to curb the outlaw gun.

To Press For Action. They assert that they will keep actively behind the bills which will be introduced at an early date, with a view to securing prompt action on the measures.

The bill as prepared calls for an amendment to the state constitution. It provides simply that paragraph 22, section 1, article 1, of the state constitution be amended by inserting the words "power to regulate the carrying of arms" in the manner in which arms may be borne" the following words: "The character of and so that said section and paragraph, when amended by this act, shall read as follows: "The right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed, but the general assembly shall have the power to prescribe the character of and the manner in which arms may be owned or borne, or either."

This bill is considered one of the most forward-looking steps that can be taken by any state toward restriction of promiscuous ownership and carrying of pistols. In addition to the Constitution's stirring campaign, it has been editorially endorsed by The Athens Banner, The Savannah Enquirer-Sun, The Brunswick Press, The Brunswick Banner, The Augusta Chronicle, The Atlanta Journal and numerous weekly papers. It has the endorsement of the late former justice of the supreme court, Andrew J. Cobb; the former president of the state bar association, William M. Howard, and other leaders of the bar of the state, in addition to a large majority of judges. The bill was reported to the senate by the

$720,000 Cargo of Liquors Of British Schooner Seized

CAPTURE MADE BY DRY NAVY ON GULF COAST

Mobile, Ala., June 26.—(AP)—Making what is believed to be a record for a single-handed capture since the United States coast guard opened war on rum smuggling several weeks ago, an alleged liquor schooner and six small boats, along with a whisky cargo, estimated to be worth $720,000 at retail bootleg prices, were towed into Mobile tonight, following their seizure by the coast guard cutter Sauklee. Twenty-three men were brought into port as prisoners and lodged in the county jail for safe keeping.

Constituting the liquor cargo were nearly 6,000 cases of alcohol and assorted whisky, valued at $60 a case, it was stated. The capture was made Wednesday night about 20 miles west of Mobile from Southwest Pass, La., officers of the Sauklee said. The schooner, which had left here earlier in the week on a cruise of the gulf rum districts, surprised the boats while the contraband goods were being unloaded from the schooner, it was stated.

The schooner is the Marion Adams, a British registry craft of 70 tons net, whose home port was announced as Lauenburg, Nova Scotia. The schooner, according to information obtained, cleared from Havana, Cuba, June 9, with a cargo of 5,000 cases of alcohol and assorted liquors for Trinidad, Honduras, as its destination. The cargo included 2,500 cases or packages of alcohol and 3,100 cases of assorted whiskies, it was stated.

All, or practically all, the cargo fell captive when the schooner was seized. Belief was expressed that steps to unload the liquor to smaller craft had begun only a short time before the Sauklee appeared on the scene. One of the small boats had liquor aboard, and even then the men aboard the boats did not recognize the cutter, because there came a yell to "Put out that light!" A few moments later the vessel and its crews were prisoners.

Pandemonium supplanted the calm and leisurely activity aboard the group of boats when the Sauklee was recognized as a government vessel, according to information brought here. The several smaller boats were said to have been huddled in close proximity to the schooner.

The small boats taken captive consisted of five motorboats, one loaded with liquor, and a high-powered speedboat.

Whether the capture was made inside or outside the 12-mile prohibition limits was not stated by coast guard officials.

VERDICT RETURNED AFTER DISCUSSION OF SEVERAL HOURS

Jurors Refuse To Reveal Number of Ballots Taken or How Final Agreement Was Reached.

SHEPHERD THANKS JURY FOR VERDICT

Accused Lawyer Leaves Jail After Signing Bond for Appearance on Remaining Charge.

Chicago, June 25.—(AP)—William Darling Shepherd, attorney, was acquitted of the charge of murder of William Nelson McClintock, millionaire orphan, here tonight by a jury in the criminal court.

Shepherd was accused of administering typhoid germs to the youth, his foster son, in a plot to cause his death and thereby gain control of the estate.

The jury deliberated 5 hours and 40 minutes. Members of it would not divulge the number of ballots taken, nor the methods by which they reached final agreement. They said that they had taken a collective oath not to reveal the record of the balancing.

Shepherd Leaves Jail. As a result of the verdict, Shepherd tonight walked from the Cook county jail a free man, after having been in custody since March 15 last. He faces another murder charge, but Judge Thomas J. Lynch agreed to permit him to sign his own bond.

At the same time the coroner's jury recommended he be held for the murder of Billy McClintock, it directed that he be held for the murder also of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, Billy's mother, 17 years ago. It is that charge which still hangs over his head, although tonight it was not believed by Shepherd's attorneys that he ever would be brought to trial on it.

Face Wreathed in Smiles. Shepherd's dead-white face was wreathed in smiles as he heard the verdict read by the court clerk and leaped forward to thank the jurors who had acquitted him.

His wife, Mrs. Julie Shepherd, was not in the court room, having found the arduous task of a daily battle over the six weeks' period of the trial too great a strain for her. She waited with friends at a downtown hotel for the verdict. At Shepherd's side to hear the words which freed him were his brother, J. Henry Shepherd, of Little Rock, Ark., and his former law partner, Robert Stoll, who has been with Shepherd constantly in court.

Very few other interested persons were in the court room, but despite stern warnings of bailiffs against a demonstration, the crowd of curious men and women, which threatened did not still immediately.

Above the bedlam of cheers and

GERMAN PLANNING ZEPPELIN FLIGHT TO ARCTIC ZONE

Berlin, June 26.—Dr. Hugo Eckener will attempt to reach the north pole in a Zeppelin in the spring of 1927, according to a Zeppelin company announcement.

The German government will subsidize the construction of a dirigible larger than any yet built, which Eckener will command. Dr. Eckener, a physicist, who has been in the navy, is one of the most prominent of the less than four degrees of the pole north of Franz Josef land, will accompany Eckener as geographer.

It was Dr. Eckener who piloted the ZLT-3 across the Atlantic last year from Germany to Lakehurst, N. J., where the dirigible became the Los Angeles.

Prominent Member of City's Business Circles Succumbs Following Paralytic Stroke.

John J. Woodside, Sr., one of Atlanta's most prominent business men, died Friday afternoon at the residence, 11 East Fifteenth street, following a prolonged illness.

Mr. Woodside was a member of the First Presbyterian church and served as treasurer of that institution for more than 10 years. He was also a deacon of the church.

Sensational Evidence Given TELLS OF ALLEGED CONFESSION BY HER DAUGHTER By Mrs. Symington's Mother

New York, June 26.—(AP)—Mrs. Margaret Pinkham, mother of Mrs. Ida May Symington, defendant in the divorce suit brought by Thomas H. Symington, wealthy sportsman, gave a sensational turn to the trial in supreme court today when she testified that in 1924 Symington told her wife had admitted to him that she had been the mother of an illegitimate son when she was 16 years old. This was several years before she married Symington.

Mrs. Pinkham said she was amazed and shocked by Symington's statement and "didn't know what to make of it." She thought, perhaps, her daughter had told him that in order to "get even with the Symington family because they had tortured her so."

Mrs. Pinkham followed her daughter on the witness stand and testified that Symington called her to Boston and said he wanted to adopt the boy and make him his heir, if his wife admitted the identity of the child as her own.

Mrs. Pinkham said that in May, 1924, she was at her home in Maplewood, N. J., when Symington asked her over long distance telephone to meet him in Boston. She did, and he told her of his wife's alleged admission. Symington, she said, continued:

"My family, like a lot of dogs, have raised all kinds of trouble for Ida and me. All they want is my money, but they will never get a penny. I am glad that my wife has a son, so that I can make him my legal heir."

AMERICANS ROUT CHINESE RIOTERS

Anti-Foreign Demonstration Breaks Anew in Shanghai — Several Aliens Stoned by Mob.

Shanghai, June 26.—Chinese rioters stoned street cars and automobiles of foreigners during minor disturbances in connection with the opening of banks and shops Friday. United States marines and local police dispersed the mobs.

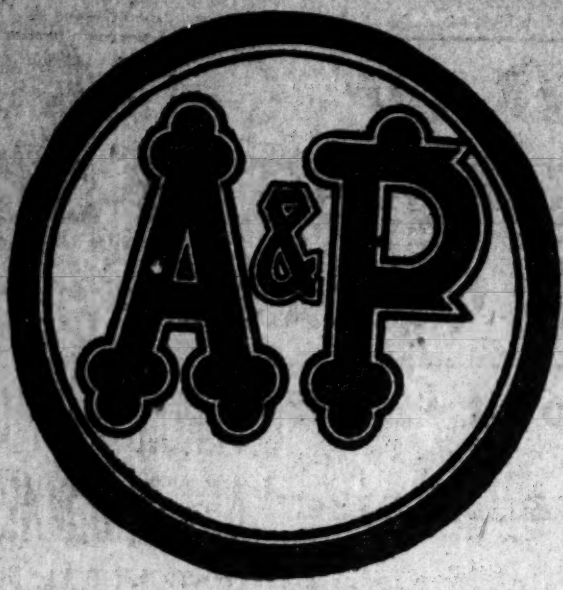

The removal of the shutters from the bank and shop windows was supposed to end the four weeks' strike which had kept such establishments closed, but an investigation disclosed that few Chinese returned to the employment of foreign firms. Mills and shipping are completely tied up by strikers.

Students opposed the return of workers to banks and shops, but it was decided that they should return so that part of their pay could be used to support striking mill hands and sailors. No end to the shipping or mill strikes is in sight. The strikers promise an indefinite tie-up.

Business will be benefited but slightly by the opening of banks and shops as the boycott of foreigners and foreign-owned shops is rigidly enforced, and even if this were not the shipping strike prevents the en-

APPEAL IS SLATED IN TAG DECISION

An appeal from the decision of Judge John D. Humphries, who Friday held that the state has a right to compel the city of Atlanta to purchase state license tags for city automobiles, is expected to be filed today, it was announced Friday night.

Judge Humphries made the ruling in city court.

City Attorney James L. Mayson announced shortly after the ruling that he would file an appeal making it a test case.

The ruling of Judge Humphries was based on a case of the state vs. A. E. Davis, city policeman, who was charged with driving a city-owned car without a state license tag. Davis was fined $25 and costs or 30 days in jail. This case will be appealed and made a test case.

The ruling of the court not only gives the state a right to collect the state tax on city-owned and operated cars, but also gives it power to enforce its demands by making cases against individual drivers of machines.

The city of Atlanta should, say for state licenses on all its automobiles," Judge Humphries said. "Further than that, it should do so at once and relieve its employees of further humiliation caused by arrest and prosecution."

Mr. Mayson filed a demurrer and preliminary argument was heard in this. Judge Humphries failing to hold the trial by Roy Dorsey, solicitor of the state, it is said to be the first of more than 100 which have been docketed.

The state was represented at the trial by Roy Dorsey, solicitor of the criminal court. Jesse M. Wood, assistant city attorney, assisted Mr. Mayson in the defense.

Senator Hendrix, of the 35th district, has introduced a bill in the legislature seeking to amend the motor vehicle law so as to exempt city-owned and operated machines from the state tax.

JUDGE GOBER RESIGNS BOARD MEMBERSHIP

Resignation of Judge George F. Gober, of Athens, for 25 years a member of the board of trustees of the University of Georgia and recently elected, by unanimous vote of the board, president of the Lumpkin Law school at Athens, has written Governor Clifford Walker a letter tendering his resignation as a member of the board.

The letter to Governor Walker follows:

Hon. Clifford Walker, Governor,
Atlanta, Georgia.

Dear Sir:

I have served on the board of trustees of the university for the past 25 years, as a member from the largest of my last appointment I still have six years more to serve. During this time I have collected one roll call, when my train was delayed, and was absent with leave one day to argue a case in the supreme court. I have recently been unanimously elected by the board of trustees as president of the Lumpkin Law school and to take up the work of the late Judge A. J. Cobb and to devote my entire time to those duties. I have the opinion of the attorney general that I can still hold the place as trustee, whereas he cites certain other instances where trustees have done so under similar circumstances.

In accordance with my inclinations and as what to me seems proper, I hereby tender my resignation as such member of the board of trustees.

I indicated to your excellency this tender on my election, but I found that I had certain previous assignments by the board that I felt I was under obligations to fulfill before resigning.

With personal regards and best wishes, I am, Very truly yours,
GEORGE F. GOBER.

PHYSICIANS FINED ON NARCOTIC LAW

Raleigh, N. C., June 26.—(AP)—Fines ranging from $250 to $1,000 were imposed here today in the federal court upon four physicians of Durham, N. C., who pleaded guilty to charges of violating the Harrison anti-narcotic law.

The physicians who entered pleas of guilty and were fined were: Dr. E. H. Bowling, $1,000 in cash; Drs. W. A. Stowd, Needham P. Boddie and Ira Stoner, $250 each in 12 monthly installments.

Judge I. M. Meekins granted a change of venue to the government in the case of Dr. Elmer S. Waring when District Attorney Irvin B. Tucker informed the court that it had been reported to him that the wife of one of the jurors was an addict. The jury last night failed to return a verdict and was dismissed.

At the same time the judge set aside the verdict of guilty returned against Dr. Micup Robertson, an "inconsistent" with the evidence, and granted the physician a new trial.

MONEY IN PRISON PLOT WAS "LOAN"

000 for the outrageous manner in which he had treated them but declared that Fletcher declined to accept this gift.

Several weeks prior to their incarceration in the federal prison here Father Thomas P. Hayden visited Savannah and offered to "see to it that special privileges" would be granted Willie Haas, his two brothers, his father, Sam Goldberg, C. C. Tuten, Richard Bailey and Graham Baughn $15,000 were paid. This deal was never carried out but a second deal calling for the payment of $10,500 was consummated, according to the witness.

As far as Fletcher was concerned Haas said he had never paid him any money directly and had not asked him for any special privileges. He said after Fletcher had been released from the Christmas present of $5,000 he had said he would appreciate a loan as he was going to Miami where he expected to engage in the ice business. He offered to put up security for the money and to pay interest for its use, the witness testified.

Haas testified that when he asked his brother, Ernest Haas, to pay Fletcher the $5,000, that Sartain was in Columbus, Ohio. He said the other $5,000 had been given to Biehl for Sartain and that the entire amount was a "legitimate loan" made to the former prison officials.

When asked about an affidavit he signed to the effect that he had never paid any money to Sartain or Fletcher the witness declared that he had signed the paper but the statement in it was not true. He explained that he signed it in an effort to prevent the investigation which was to be made by federal officials.

Said He Gave Money.

Ernest Haas said he gave the $3,500 to Fletcher in a sealed package but said he did not see Fletcher open the package. He said he handed the package to Fletcher and told him he would bring the notes that afternoon. To this he said Fletcher replied "All right."

Graham Baughn, Savannah lawyer, who served a sentence on a charge of conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law, testified that he got a check for $5,000 cash for Fletcher at an Atlanta bank. He said the check was drawn by Emanuel Sussnick, New York lawyer. He said he got the money in cash through a friend in Atlanta and turned the $5,000 package over to Fletcher.

According to Baughn, the check was drawn by Sussnick for Mannie Kessler. He said Fletcher told him he wanted to get this check cashed as he had a payment due the next day on a deal to take over an ice business in Florida. Baughn, after a cross-examination that he had not several checks cashed for Kessler and other prisoners. He stated he had been in a poker game with Kessler and others and had won $3,800 from the other prisoners. He denied that the $5,000 check had been cashed by him so that Kessler could pay his poker debts.

Baughn said he first met Father Hayden in Atlanta at the Georgian Terrace hotel a short time before he began to serve his sentence.

Hayden said he said the proposal was made by Hayden that money be paid for "special privileges." It was after this conference that Hayden and Fletcher went to Savannah to get the money, Baughn testified.

Relates Alleged Deal.

According to Baughn, the $10,500 was received from a man named John J. Woodside, Jr., who was a son of John J. Woodside, Jr., two sisters, Mrs. A. L. McPherson and Mrs. Alma V. Kurkamp, of Louisville, Ky., and a brother, Robert S. Woodside, of Melbourne, Fla., and two grandchildren, John J. Woodside III, and Margaret Woodside.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the residence, 11 East Fifteenth street, Rev. J. Spore Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

The following will act as pallbearers: Charles Winslow, J. Lee Barnes, Asa G. Candler, Walter D. Andrews, W. A. Speer, J. K. Otley, Dr. A. H. Van Dyke and E. Rivers.

Man Who Killed Atlanta Tries To End His Life

Greenville, S. C., June 26.—(AP)—O. R. Magness, self-confessed deserter from the United States army, who ran amok on a Southern passenger train as it was entering Greenville early this morning and shot two Atlanta men, one fatally, made two attempts to take his own life today, jail officials reported.

The first attempt was made with a shoe lace which Magness tied tightly around his throat. He was near strangulation when found, it was said. Shortly after he was revived he repeatedly bit his head against the stone walls of his cell.

Magness said he deserted the army four days ago at Fort Huachuca, Va. Flinted To Recover.

W. F. Flint, of Atlanta, who was wounded with recover unless unexpected complications set in, hospital authorities said today.

Magness, a native of Spain, who is held in the county jail, declared he remembered shooting up the train but did not know why he shot.

Magness, according to witnesses, roused from an apparent slumber in the smoking compartment as the train, No. 135 southbound, was between Greer and Greenville, and was firing promiscuously with a long-barreled revolver. Flint was struck first. Then the revolver was turned upon Ray E. Peek, also of Atlanta, who was lying stretched out upon a seat, and two bullets were fired into his head, killing him instantly.

Magness then fired his last cartridge through the window and passengers on the train overpowered him and held him until the train arrived here.

Magness was taken to the hospital at the University of Georgia, where he is being treated for his wounds.

Man Who Killed Atlanta Tries To End His Life

Greenville, S. C., June 26.—(AP)—O. R. Magness, self-confessed deserter from the United States army, who ran amok on a Southern passenger train as it was entering Greenville early this morning and shot two Atlanta men, one fatally, made two attempts to take his own life today, jail officials reported.

The first attempt was made with a shoe lace which Magness tied tightly around his throat. He was near strangulation when found, it was said. Shortly after he was revived he repeatedly bit his head against the stone walls of his cell.

Magness said he deserted the army four days ago at Fort Huachuca, Va. Flinted To Recover.

W. F. Flint, of Atlanta, who was wounded with recover unless unexpected complications set in, hospital authorities said today.

Magness, a native of Spain, who is held in the county jail, declared he remembered shooting up the train but did not know why he shot.

Magness, according to witnesses, roused from an apparent slumber in the smoking compartment as the train, No. 135 southbound, was between Greer and Greenville, and was firing promiscuously with a long-barreled revolver. Flint was struck first. Then the revolver was turned upon Ray E. Peek, also of Atlanta, who was lying stretched out upon a seat, and two bullets were fired into his head, killing him instantly.

Magness then fired his last cartridge through the window and passengers on the train overpowered him and held him until the train arrived here.

CONTINUED FAIR WEATHER SEEN

No rain, cloudless skies and a comparatively comfortable temperature, with the thermometer registering between 86 and 87 degrees, is the weather forecast for today by A. H. Scott, acting chief of the local United States weather bureau, in the absence of C. F. von Herrmann.

The Washington forecast for the entire state was for partly cloudy weather with probable showers in the southern portion.

Light showers have been reported during the past 48 hours in various sections of the state, including points on the outskirts of Atlanta. Mr. Scott sees no prospect of rain in Atlanta during the next 48 hours. Further relief from the heat wave was recorded Friday in another drop of several degrees in temperature. Beginning at a low point of 68 degrees at 5 o'clock Friday morning—7 degrees short of the low point Thursday—the mercury climbed gradually to 74 degrees at 7 o'clock, 76 degrees at 8 o'clock, 79 degrees at 10, and 81 degrees at noon. The high point of 86 degrees shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The high point of Thursday was 89 degrees.

Generally fair weather for today over the state, except local thunder-showers in the extreme south portion, is forecast.

GOVERNOR WALKER BEGINS NEW TERM

Forest rangers and pointed out that in all countries where this happened the resultant hybrid race has retained all the characteristics of the lower strain, but has lost the finer features of the higher race.

Early airing of the complicated situation in the state highway department was seen when Representative Beck, of Carroll, introduced a resolution calling on the department for details concerning funds received during 1925-26-27, from the motor vehicle tax and gasoline tax, and their distribution. Mr. Beck announced that he would call this resolution up for action on Monday. In the meantime, the state highway board was in session at East Point and rumors freely predicted the publication of the audit department by State Auditor Sam J. Slaton within the next day or two.

The proposed changes to the rules of the house, in the resolution offered by Representative Dykes, and which will be taken up for debate on Tuesday next, include the following:

That the rules committee be authorized to take charge of the calendar and direct the order of business for 14 days before the end of the session, in stead of during the last seven days as the rule now provides.

That a two-thirds vote of the entire membership of 20 be required to override the rules committee, instead of a two-thirds of those actually voting, as at present.

That the speaker of the house be empowered to request amendments to house bills out of order, in the event he regards them as not being germane to the bill or as rendering the measure unconstitutional.

The no general appropriation bill may be introduced after the first 30 days of the session have expired, and that the appropriations committee be authorized to report out all bills at least 15 days before the end of the session.

That occupants of the press table seats be required to present credentials showing that they are representing newspapers or general circulation or telegraphic press associations.

A flood of bills was introduced in the house Friday after Representative McCrory, of Shelby, had called for this order of business on the roll of the counties. Eighty-seven bills were thrown into the legislative hopper and referred to committees by Speaker White. Many of these were of minor importance, some being local bills, others dealing with subjects which have been listed among outstanding problems for solution this year by solons.

House bill number 1 was introduced by Representative Johnson, of Appling county. It calls for a constitutional amendment to authorize the legislature to classify property for taxation, to adopt different rates and methods of taxation for different classes of property, and to segregate different classes of property for state and local taxation.

Several bills were introduced by the Atlanta school board, one providing for the labor of children under 14 in certain classes of industry and prohibiting labor of children under 16 between the hours of 7 in the morning and 6 in the afternoon. This is one of the bills advocated by the children's code commission. Another bill would increase the number of members of the board of education from two and make the additional one a woman.

Viaducts Bill in Hopper.

The Fulton delegation introduced the resolution to authorize the city of Atlanta to build viaducts over the route-owned property at Pryor street and Central avenue. The Fulton delegation also introduced a bill to fix the salary of the clerk of the Fulton county board of commissioners at $6,000 per annum and to provide a deputy clerk for the board.

Representative Hooper, of Fulton, introduced a bill asking an appropriation of $8,150 for completion of the Harriet Hawkins cottage at the Georgia Training school for girls, and Mr. Hooper's name also was on a bill with Representative Camp, of Coweta, to amend the act allowing ordinaries to appoint guardians for insane persons to extend their powers to World war veterans who become incompetent to receive government pensions and other funds.

Two bills were introduced to reduce the number of fuel oil inspectors in the state. The oil inspection department is operated under the state department of agriculture. One of these bills, by Representative Gholbeck, of Dodge, would reduce the number of inspectors to six, while the other, by Representative Whitchard, of Early, is even more drastic and would cut the number to two.

Several bills providing for repeal of the state inheritance tax laws were introduced, while two separate bills asked appropriation of special purposes for the University of Georgia. One of these, introduced by Harris, of Jefferson, and others, asks $25,000 for additional maintenance during 1925 and another asks $10,000 for completion of Milledge dormitory.

Beck and Henderson, of Carroll, ask $75,000 for a new dormitory at the Bowdon State Normal and Industrial college.

Harris, of Jefferson, and Jones, of Meriwether, are joint authors of a bill which would reduce the number of graduates income tax, with proper exemptions, in the state.

New Safety Measure.

Griffin, of Decatur, and Hall, of Treutlen, are authors of a bill which would require all motorists to come to a full stop before crossing railroad grade crossings in Georgia. The bill also provides for posting of proper warning signals 100 feet from the crossings on either approach.

A bill to authorize manufacture of ethyl alcohol in Georgia had to regulate its sale and transportation was introduced by Representative Mann, of Glynn. Representative Stanford, of Lowndes, is author of a bill to require all state revenue to be paid direct into the state treasury.

Representative Jones, of Meriwether, introduced the second bill dealing with classification of property for taxation, while Representative Burgin, of Marion, proposed a constitutional amendment to prohibit levy of a state income tax or inheritance tax.

The Baldwin representative, Mr. McClure, introduced a measure providing an appropriation of $195,000 for new buildings at the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville.

May Force Registration.

A bill by Representative Ross, of Richmond, would make registration compulsory for all male citizens between the ages of 21 and 60, while McCrory of Shelby introduced a bill to create the office of state text book commissioner and provide for distribution of school books to school children at actual cost.

Georgia's new marriage license law, passed at the last session, which requires that notice shall be publicly posted for five days before the license is issued, would be repealed if a bill by Representative Steed, of Taylor county, is passed. Representative Rosser, of Walker, would amend the five-day notice requirement on marriage licenses by making it apply only to persons under 21 years of age.

Representative Beck, of Carroll, introduced a resolution calling on the state highway department to furnish information concerning expenditure, distribution and total amount of funds received from the motor vehicle tax and gasoline tax during the years 1923, 1924 and 1925. He announced that he would call this resolution up for action on Monday.

SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE IN SYMINGTON CASE

A house party at the Morris town, N. J., home of the Symingtons where, he said, all the guests were clad in negligee.

"Lounging around the house in such garb was the custom in our set," he said. "Everybody did it."

Villier said that he could not remember that there had been anything indiscreet at that time in the conduct of either Mrs. Symington or Maurice Fatio, architect, named as co-respondent in Symington's petition.

CHAMBERS HEAVILY IN DEBT BEFORE MAKING CONFESSION.

New York, June 26.—Talbot W. Chambers, "the man who told," was so involved financially a few days before he signed a confession of improper conduct with Mrs. Ida May Symington that he was contemplating suicide, Mrs. Symington testified Friday in her husband's suit for divorce.

Chambers admitted his business was suffering and he needed money, Mrs. Symington said, less than a week before he went to the office of Thomas H. Symington, the millionaire manufacturer, and signed the confession. Symington, 49, suing his wife for divorce, has named Chambers a co-respondent.

The pretty defendant continued her denial of intimacy with Chambers, who has been charged with adultery as a result of his testimony. She admitted, however, having driven from Morris town, N. J., to New York with him on the evening of March 16, and said she invited him to her apartment. There were several servants there at the time, she said, and Chambers remained but a few minutes.

The next time she saw Chambers, Mrs. Symington said, was more than a month later. That was just four days before the confession was signed. At that time, she said, Chambers was despondent over his business losses and threatened to shoot himself.

try or egress of merchandise. Vessels are able to discharge and receive only passengers and mail.

The Chinese insist that the opening of business hours is not a compromise but merely marks a change in the procedure whereby the shipping and mill strike are to strangle commerce.

CHINESE MINISTER HANDS KELLOGG PERKIN NOTE

Washington, June 26.—A visit to the state department Friday by Dr. Sao-Kee Alfred Sze, Chinese minister, gave rise to a belief here that the Chinese position has again been touched at the point where intervention is being discussed.

The minister discussed the existing situation with Secretary of State Kellogg and made several suggestions which the state department preferred not to disclose. He also delivered a note to Kellogg from his government, setting forth demands for revision of treaties giving the powers an economic hold on China, and reiterating the 13 points advanced by the Chinese following the Shanghai disturbances several weeks ago.

The note was identical with that delivered to the foreign diplomatic corps at Peking in the Chinese government three days ago. While the Chinese have made no request upon the United States or any other power to act as "peace-maker" or arbitrator, they hope that the action in delivering the note will enlist American interest in her troubles.

ANTI-PISTOL BILL TO BE INTRODUCED

cently introduced by the Protestant Ministers Evangelical association of Atlanta at a meeting about two months ago.

Introduced Before.

Representative Golucke first introduced this bill in the general assembly while he was a member of the state senate in 1921, and it passed the state senate by a vote of 44 to only 1 vote "against," but failed to reach a vote in the house, due to the rush of business in the closing days of the session.

The leading members of the bar of the state have reached the conclusion that the legislature can pass no satisfactory restrictive legislation on the subject of pistols so long as this weapon enjoys its present constitutional protection, and it is to remove this constitutional protection now enjoyed by the pistol that Representative Golucke is pushing this measure, with the collaboration of Senator Foster in the senate.

Speaking of this measure Friday Representative Golucke said that about 500 people are killed yearly by the pistol, and that this number about 90 per cent of homicides is taken in the state. If we could make it harder and more inconvenient for people to acquire or keep or carry pistols, we could reduce the number of homicides. When we learn that there are more homicides yearly in Georgia, with 3,000,000 population, than take place in England with 30,000,000 people, we should be anxious to find the reason, and if possible to remove it. In my judgment, one of the main reasons for this large number of homicides is the easy accessibility of the pistol. And when we undertake to restrict the ownership or carrying of the pistol, we are met with the proposition that under the constitution "if this state shall take away the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

Would Amend Section.

"Under the constitution of this state, adopted in 1798 and at that time in force, the Georgia legislature, in 1837, passed an act restricting and prohibiting the ownership and carrying of the pistol. But this constitutional provision did not have in it that section now embodied in the present constitution, which gives to the people the right to keep and bear arms. Conditions which developed following the civil war, caused the constitutional provision to be embodied in that instrument the section now protecting the pistol—the section which gives the people the right to keep and bear arms. I would amend it, and that it is the sole purpose of my bill, so that the legislature can enjoy a greater liberty of action, in describing the 'character of arms which may be owned or borne or either. Given that greater liberty of action, subsequent legislatures then may pass such restrictive legislation as they may feel as wise to them. My bill merely gives subsequent legislatures this greater liberty of action, and that is the sole purpose of my bill."

Federal Constitution Clause.

"The federal constitution embraces a section on the right of the people to keep and bear arms very similar to that embodied in our state constitution. But the supreme court in the case of U. S. vs. Cruikshank, 92 U. S. 542, held that the provision in the federal constitution merely prevents and prohibits the federal congress from interfering with the right of the people to keep and bear arms, and does not prevent or prohibit a state from passing restrictive legislation. This case was followed by the case of Presser vs. U. S., 116 U. S. 265, upholding the decision in the former case.

There are some who look to the federal congress to remedy the situation, but so long as this section remains in the federal constitution they will look to this source in vain. If the premises upon which the pistol is restricted, it must be by the state, and so long as the present constitutional provision remains unamended, no legislation at all satisfactory can be passed. But remove this present constitutional protection, then future legislatures can handle the subject with complete liberty of action—as the general assembly did in 1837, when they were unhampered by the constitutional provision referred to above,—and then we may expect to obtain satisfactory legislation on the pistol, and not before."

Representative Golucke served in the state senate during the term of 1921 and 1922, when he made a splendid record of consistent work. He has always stayed clear of factional alignments and has invariably stood first for the honor of the state and the protection of the life, liberty and property of its citizens.

1 DEAD, MANY HURT IN TRAIN CRASH

Chicago, June 26.—(AP)—One man, an employee, was killed, and a number of passengers injured in a rear-end collision of two elevated trains on the South Side Line of the Chicago Rapid Transit company near the Thirty-fifth Street station today.

The man killed was Pierce Moore. At least five others were severely injured, and a number of others were bruised and cut.

An empty train crashed into a northbound Howard Avenue Express train and one of the coaches was thrown from the rails, but remained on the elevated structure.

Officials of the elevated company said none of the passengers was seriously injured. Moore, a company employee, was standing on the rear platform of the forward express when the crash occurred.

The forward train was a baseball special express which would ordinarily not stop at Thirty-fifth street.

Presumably the motorman of the southbound train, which was running as express and crashed into the special. The rear train suffered the most damage.

SHEPHERD ACQUITTED OF MURDER CHARGE

the booming of flashlights of news photographers, the foreman of the jury, William Burnett, finally made himself heard.

He read a note of thanks the jurors had written to Judge Lynch, expressing appreciation for his consideration and courtesy and the orderly manner in which the trial had been conducted.

The judge returned the jurors' expressions of good will, thanked them and released them until tomorrow morning, when they can get the pay due them for their long service.

Shakes Hands of Jury.

Meanwhile, Shepherd and his attorneys, William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, were waiting at the end of the jury box for a triumphant procession of handshaking and thanking down its length.

Every juror returned smile for smile and handclasp for handclasp. None of the bitterness which sounded in rebuffed voices shortly after the jury retired was evidenced.

During the long deliberations the voice of at least one juror was heard in harsh argument above the others. A number of times the name "Judge Olson" was heard.

Prosecutors Unimpaired.

It was Judge Harry Olson, chief justice of the municipal court, who forced investigation of the death of Billy McClintock and the subsequent indictment of Shepherd.

The prosecutors virtually were unimpaired as the crowd swarmed by them to congratulate Shepherd and the victorious lawyers.

Shepherd was released from the county jail an hour after he heard the not guilty verdict. At the entrance he was met by another crowd of cheering fans.

Grimacing broadly and accompanied by Attorney Stewart, he was hurried into a waiting automobile and whisked away to meet his wife.

Five Golucke's pushing this measure, with the collaboration of Senator Foster in the senate.

Crowd's Staff Astonished.

Prosecutor Crowe and his staff said nothing beyond expressing astonishment over the verdict after the long deliberations.

Words welled from Stewart and O'Brien, defense attorneys, however. "It is a vindication of the jury system," O'Brien proclaimed.

That 12 fair-minded men can be picked from at large and return a just verdict, based on the evidence adduced for their case, is demonstrated that they believe Shepherd was the victim of a diabolical plot and the verdict was a virtual vote against Faiman, Marchand, Olson and the others who sought to implicate man.

The greatest crowd of the six weeks of the trial fought for admission to the court room today to hear Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, make the closing jury plea in the Shepherd trial.

Hundreds of persons forced their way into a court room which ordinarily seats 90, and long lines extended away from the entrance.

Prosecutor Crowe led with a denunciation of William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, the defense attorneys, for their spirit of levity.

He defended himself, Judge Harry Olson and Alexander F. Reichmann from the defense's allegation that the accusation against Shepherd and his trial were steps in a vicious conspiracy against Shepherd to prevent him inheriting the $1,000,000 estate.

He wanted to laugh this case out of court, Crowe forced between clenched teeth. "They tried to make a comedy, make a burlesque of it, have laughter in this room by the hired claqueurs they brought here."

Crowe said the reason he put Judge Olson on the witness stand was to give Stewart and O'Brien an opportunity to make good their jury choosing statement that "we will show this case is a frame-up; Harry Olson has a financial interest in it."

Flays Defense.

"What do you think of tactics of that sort?" demanded Crowe as he accused Stewart and O'Brien. "Shepherd has said that the apparel 'of proclaims the man.' You can often tell whether or not the defendant is guilty by the kind of defense he presents to a jury."

The prosecutor criticized Shepherd for living 16 years in a millionaire's home in a fashionable suburb, practicing law, and not having a host of influential friends to rush to his rescue, and for waiting until the last moment to deny the charges against him.

The defense objected that by insinuating that Shepherd should have called character witnesses the prosecutor was committing a reversible error.

Mr. Crowe dilated upon his charge that Shepherd was a shiftless "hand-herder" who had been content to live 16 years in plenty provided by another.

"My only purpose in cross-examining this man was to prove he was a liar," Prosecutor Crowe told the jury, as he pointed a finger at Shepherd.

Branded as Liar.

"I had him branding himself a liar with his own words as he left the witness stand. That was the only purpose in going back into records of the private court and cross-examining him now as to what he said then."

Shepherd was doubly caught, Crowe showed, "when he took the witness stand and denied he murdered Billy McClintock, but did not deny the conversations state witnesses said they had with him."

Something had happened when Shepherd said to Miss Stella Gehring that he had been pauperized and that he was considering closing his office and drifting away from it all, the prosecutor said.

"He was a liar when he swore he was lying, when he said nothing had happened."

Shepherd's brother from Little Rock, Ark., listened to Mr. Crowe. Shepherd heard the state attorney's plea without visible emotion.

"There is not a syllable of testimony that I am here to put over mass of perjury," roared Crowe with resounding thumps on the jury box railing. "That is the charge by Stewart and O'Brien."

"I deal with crime. I do not license crime. If I did every one of Stewart and O'Brien's clients would have diplomats from me."

ST. PAUL RAILWAY WILL HELP MEET STOCK PAYMENTS

New York, June 26.—(AP)—Small stockholders of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, now in receivership, will be assisted by the reorganization managers and protective committees in meeting the assessments imposed under the reorganization plan, it was announced tonight.

Both common and preferred shareholders who have held their stock as an investment for a number of years were advised by the chairman of their protective committees that arrangements would be made to enable them to carry the payments of $32 for each common share and $28 for the preferred.

This financial assistance is expected to dispose of threatened opposition from a group of security holders, with headquarters at Washington, who complained that the assessment burden would "squeeze out" many small stockholders.

part, an alleged member of the Godsey clan was shot by Lawrence Bowman, who is also out on bond.

Trouble has been predicted between the clans for several days and it is believed by officers that Dr. Mason was innocently brought into the feud because he was in company with Bowman.

Doctor Not Called.

A report received from deputies by Sherman Sellman at 7:30 tonight stated that they had visited the home of the family supposed to have called Dr. Mason and learned that the veterinarian had not been asked to come to the mountain. This led the sheriff to believe that Bowman and Mason had been lured to the mountain and probably killed.

Sherman Sellman and a posse of officers armed with riot guns and rifles have left for the mountain to seek the missing men.

Sam Godsey, said to be the leader of the clan, reported to Coroner Lee Hancock this afternoon that he had heard that two men had been killed on the mountain.

HANCOCK CITIZEN SHOT TO DEATH

Sparta, Ga., June 26.—(Special).—Pressley Hitchcock, 60, successful and industrious farmer of the southern section of Hancock county was shot in the face and instantly killed Thursday afternoon by Ernest Hutchings, a brother-in-law, according to reports reaching here Friday morning, the killing taking place at the Hitchcock home and in the presence of his wife and daughter.

Hutchings has surrendered to Sheriff J. M. Jackson and is now held in the Hancock county jail, awaiting commitment hearing.

Reports reaching here from the scene of the killing are to the effect that Hitchcock and his brother-in-law were on the friendliest of terms, the latter having lived in the Hitchcock home since early youth, with the exception of a short while he was an inmate of the state sanitarium for the insane from which he was discharged about a year ago. Hitchcock was shot in the face with a shotgun, without warning as he was entering his home, Hutchings turning to the widow, a sister, and the daughter said: "I shot Press because I loved Press and I love you."

The killing occasioned great distress in the section of the county in which it occurred, the dead man being highly regarded by his neighbors, because of his thrift and honorable attributes of character.

LIVES THREATENED IN FIRE IN HOTEL

Fire, which endangered lives of a number of patrons of the Belmont hotel, 34 1-2 Forsyth street, and threatened to spread to the city hall and other downtown buildings early Friday morning, is believed to have been caused by ignition of gasoline in the tailor and pressing shop operated by Stephen Jatum, a negro.

Among the guests who were forced to flee from the blazing structure in night attire were Mrs. T. R. Edwards, wife of the hotel proprietor; Miss Mabel Raymond, an actress, and D. L. Atkinson. Ed Neal, negro bell-boy, discovered the blaze and sounded the alarm.

Neal is accredited with having gone from floor to floor, calling the guests and, in awaking Miss Raymond, was forced to crash down her door. He carried a monkey and two poodle dogs—pets of Mrs. Edwards—to safety.

Early morning traffic was blocked along Forsyth street for some time and five fire companies were called into action to battle the flames. The greatest damage was done to the tailoring establishment and adjoining pool room, although smoke and water accounted for considerable loss to the hotel.

STATE COIN WORKERS WILL MEET MONDAY

Confederate memorial coin campaign workers for the state in the gathering at the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce building Monday night at 6:30 o'clock have been promised a southern chicken dinner, and the diners will be stirred to action by the combining of all state districts, city districts, and county units into one big state organization. Attorney General Napier will preside.

The meeting, according to W. C. Shaddix, state director, is to be not only a report meeting and for the discussion of the campaign, but also the continuation of the intensive campaign through the Fourth of July gatherings over the state but also an entertainment for country men, civic leaders, mayors and city chairmen.

In the matter of reports, according to those in charge of the gathering, only one minute will be given to any report considered.

Trade Congress Agrees on Need Of Debt Funding

Brussels, June 26.—(AP)—The third biennial congress of the International Chamber of Commerce closed today with the adoption of resolutions, which, in the opinion of leading delegates, took away the atmosphere of hopelessness as to the economic situation with which the congress opened.

The plain truths told the delegates by John W. O'Leary, chairman of the chamber of commerce of the United States, followed by a categorical declaration by the French delegation that it favored the funding of war debts, cleared the air and removed the uneasiness produced by earlier forebodings as to the possible failure of the Dawes reparation plan.

In the general opinion, the resolutions adopted sustain the position of the American speakers, Mr. O'Leary and Seymour Parker Gilbert, Jr., agent general for reparation payments, that funding of the debts will go far to restore confidence, and consequently restore European credit, and that the Dawes plan is holding good, with good prospects ahead of it.

Julius H. Barnes of New York, was elected one of the vice presidents of the international chamber.

The American delegates will leave Brussels tomorrow for a visit to the port of Antwerp.

REFRIGERATOR CAR, WHISKY AND WINE SEIZED BY AGENTS

St. Louis, June 26.—(AP)—A refrigerator car loaded with whisky, gin and wine, consigned from a point in Louisiana to St. Louis, was seized by prohibition agents in the terminal yards here late today. The liquor was divided in lots of six bottles. Each lot was wrapped and tied in a gunny sack and the sacks were placed in barrels, with straw as protection against breakage. Barrels of green corn occupied the center of the car as a screen against the contraband goods.

The agents announced that the car had been consigned by E. L. Flannigan, to William A. Paul and company, commission merchants here. Flannigan was arrested by agents in New Orleans several days ago at his home at a railroad station to board a train for St. Louis.

Flannigan, an Englishman, is suspected of being the chief in this country of English and Scotch distilleries supplying St. Louis and other American cities.

He probably will remain there several days over the first anniversary of the burial at Plymouth of his son Calvin, returning to Swampscott to continue his vacation.

Tomorrow Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will motor for Cambridge and it is probable that on Sunday they will take a short cruise on the Mayflower, which is at anchor off Marblehead.

SENATE MARKING TIME THIS WEEK

Introduction of seven bills, two of which seek repeal of the state inheritance tax, through amendment of the act of 1913, and three resolutions formed the entire business Friday of the state senate. The senate is marking time until the first part of next week, when committee announcements are to be made by both bodies of the legislature and the real legislative grind will get under way.

One of the resolutions read and adopted Friday provides for appointment of a committee consisting of seven representatives and seven senators to draft a program for the governor's inaugural ceremonies today.

The committee appointed by President J. Howard Ennis, of the senate, was composed of Senators R. L. Moyer, of the 11th, Gordon Knox, of the 3rd, I. S. Peebles, Jr., of the 18th, A. L. Miller, of the 9th, L. F. Johnson, of the 27th, J. B. Clements, of the 45th, and Dr. W. C. Williams, Jr., of the 14th.

Inaugural Ceremonies.
The inaugural ceremonies at 11 o'clock this morning will be attended jointly by the senate and house of representatives. Secretary of State S. G. McElendon will be on hand, but said Friday that it will not be necessary to have the seal of state present, as both Governor Walker and Secretary McElendon succeeded themselves. Whenever there is a change in the governorship the secretary hands the seal to the outgoing governor, who hands it to the incoming governor, who in turn hands it again to the secretary of state.

One of the bills seeking repeal of the inheritance tax was introduced by Senator Milton B. Carr, of the 3rd, while the other was brought up by Senator T. L. Pickren, of the 4th. Both bills were referred to the finance committee.

Creation of the office of superintendent of public printing, and giving him power to employ an assistant, is sought in a bill introduced by Senators Carl N. Guess, of the 34th, and W. C. Hendrix, of the 35th. This bill went to the public printing committee.

Pageant Is Praised.

Appreciation of the senate is extended for the presentation of the pageant, "Light of the World," at Christmas in Atlanta by a resolution introduced by Senators Guess, Hendrix and Pickren, and read and adopted.

Approval of the efforts to secure air mail service for this section is expressed in a resolution introduced by Senators Guess and Hendrix, and read and adopted. The resolution expressed approval of the senate for the "timely effort of newspapers, civic organizations and agencies of progress to bring manufacturing, industrial and general business of Georgia into closer touch with the military and postal agencies of the national government."

House Resolution No. 6 met defeat. It provided for a joint session of house and senate Monday and Tuesday to hear reports of the state department heads and the state educational agencies on financial needs. The resolution had been introduced, was tabled by motion of Senator Shirley C. Boykin, of the 35th, and off the table by motion of Senator P. T. Knight, of the 6th, and after being placed on passage was lost.

HEAVY SENTENCES IN AUTO THEFT CASE

Heavy sentences were imposed Friday on four men who pleaded guilty in Fulton superior court to participation in a series of wholesale automobile thefts, which culminated some months ago when 60 cars were found by officers cached near Ellen, Calvin Freeman and W. M. Tyson were sentenced to from two to three years each, and Horace Hipp and Arthur Reese were fined $2,000 each and given 12 months suspended sentence upon payment of their fines. The men were tried before Judge J. R. Park.

"Better Than Ever" Service

FORTY NEW STREET CARS ORDERED

More Than a Million Dollars to Be Invested
This Year in Faster, Better, More Modern Transportation Service

FORTY new street cars have just been ordered. They will be the finest and most modern ever seen in Atlanta. They will be delivered and ready to go into service early in the fall.

Twenty new cars, the best now on the lines, were put into service in March. The new ones are the same size and type but with additional improvements for your comfort and safety.

Fifteen modern double-deck motor coaches are now being constructed for the Company and are expected to be delivered here and put into service within a few weeks.

In addition, feeder bus lines have already been established and are now operating in the Morningside, Sylvan Hills and Grant Park sections.

"Better Than Ever" Service is our slogan. Atlanta has a good Street Railway service, but we are going to make it still better. The Company, the management and the men are committed to this policy.

Watch the results

Here's What We Plan to Do!

- 1 Modernize the Street Railway, going to the very limit of our resources to obtain the very best street cars and equipment.
- 2 Speed Up the Service. Certain changes in routing of the cars, elimination of unnecessary stops, and less traffic congestion will speed up the service noticeably. The approval of the public for these changes will be asked, and if they are approved, the trip by street car will compare favorably in speed with that by automobile.

- 3 Make Your Street Car Ride More Pleasant by raising still higher the standards of courtesy, carefulness and consideration which already have made the Atlanta motormen and conductors the envy of those in other cities. We want you to ride the street cars because you want to, not solely because they are the only transportation medium.

WE BELIEVE ATLANTA WANTS THE BEST, AND IS WILLING TO SUPPORT IT AND PAY FOR IT. AT LEAST, WE ARE GOING TO RISK THE WHOLE PROPERTY IN THE BELIEF THAT THE PUBLIC WILL RESPOND.

Needing only 78 to better Barnes' record, Smith took an 80, and lost his game at the third hole and never really getting' back on it. From there until almost the end he went from bad to worse.

Two strokes back of Smith with a total of 306, came Abe Mitchell, whose game was good, but not good enough to win. He had a 206 one English, and

THE HAWK

By DANE COLLIDGE

SYNOPSIS. Dane Crabtree, known as the Hawk, works as a night herder for the NA cattle company in the Powder river district. Dull Anita Crabtree, a small independent cattle man, quarrels with the range boss, Connelley, over some lost cows. Arranta transfers his quarrel to Cato Clark, the company manager, who travels about the country always accompanied by his big dog, the company dog. The Hawk intervenes, and the two men fight. After Clark's departure Connelley quarrels with the Hawk and fires him. The Hawk has left the outfit but is always at her service. Clark offers to keep him on as one of his hired gunmen, but the Hawk refuses his offer, thus making a bitter enemy of Clark.

The Hawk rides into Bull Hook, the nearest town to the range and there meets Dan Kite Arranta. He offers to buy in a partnership with Arranta and together they retrieve the latter's lost cattle. Clark's hired gunmen attack the partners without success and the latter flee to the district. The Hawk and Arranta force Clark and Ben Salper to leave town. The Hawk explains conditions in the region to the Englishman. Mr. Grace informs him that the company intends to move its herd into Montana and offers him a job. The Hawk refuses, but promises his assistance and that of all the rustlers in the county if Clark is dismissed. Later Grace tells the Hawk that Clark is no longer manager of the company, and that his connection with it would cease when the set cow crossed the line. He also says Clark had asked permission to buy up the remainder of the herd and the Hawk offers Grace two thousand for the brand and remount, as he has discovered that hundreds of cows were being left behind. His wife's father for the money after paying a small sum for the option to buy.

INSTALLMENT XVIII. A DOUBTFUL VICTORY.

Nearly a whole day had elapsed since the Hawk had telegraphed to his father for the money to close the deal with Grace, and already the delay threatened the success of the venture which promised to put him on the road to fortune. Nobody knew how many cows Clark's cowboys had sequestered before he had ordered the wholesale throwback, but the NA cut-friendly and will help me gather the strays, but if you would sell to Mistah Clark he couldn't gther a head unless he brought in an army of gunmen." "Don't you worry about me, young man!" bellowed Clark. "I can take care of myself—here or anywhere." "I don't doubt it," responded the Hawk, sarcastically.

"Say, what are you trying to do?" demanded Cato Clark arrogantly. "Think you can scare me out of the country? Well, I'm back here to stay. I want you to understand that, and no rustler can buy up my brand."

"I've bought it," retorted the Hawk, "and here's the money that says so. Just count that, Mr. Grace, and give me a bill of sale."

"Grace!" thundered Clark, "do you know who you're dealing with? This man is the leader of a big gang of rustlers—he's been stealing our cattle for years!"

"I never stole a cow in my life!" replied the Hawk. "And that's more than you can say, Mr. Clark. You've been stealing for years—and from your own company, too—and charging it on your books against the rustlers. Now you'd better keep out of this before I get excited and tell a few things that I know. Just sign this bill of sale, Mr. Grace."

He laid the paper on the desk and stood facing Clark, whose immense body seemed to have shrunk down into its clothes. Then with a choking curse he heaved up from his chair and went stumbling out into the street. Anita followed after him, never once looking back, and the Hawk and Grace were alone.

"What's the meaning of this?" asked the Englishman in a hoarse whisper, but the Hawk only shook his head grimly.

"I don't know," he said. "But it

"I can take care of myself."

the which the Hawk himself had seen were worth three times two thousand dollars. And, once thrown back, they were lost even to Clark, for they had scattered over the range, each returning to the draw of canyon which had been its accustomed feeding ground. Only a general roundup could gather them up now; but they were there, and Cato Clark knew it, and he would harg-e hard with Grace before he quit.

Rushing into the bank president's office the Hawk laid the situation before him, but before they could come to terms the belated wire arrived and the Hawk left with his money in his pocket. The time had gone by for subterfuge and concealment, and he headed straight across the street for Grace's office.

"O, Mr. Crabtree," hailed the Englishman, rushing out to pull him in. "My dear boy, I'm in a terrible pickle. You won't mind Mr. Clark, I hope."

He spoke this last under his breath in a terrified undertone, and the Hawk shook his head and smiled.

"Good evening," he said, bowing gallantly to Anita, and Cato Clark grunted hoarsely. But Anita responded with a smile. It was a wan and tired smile, but as she met his eyes the Hawk found the message that she sought. Anita was still his friend. Through the burning and killing, the attacks and counter-attacks, the Hawk had fought valiantly for the rustlers, but, aristocrat though she was, Anita Morgaridge had not turned against him and even before Clark she dared to smile. The Hawk was roused from his trance by the hostile rumblings of Cato Clark, directed at the harassed Englishman.

"Now talk to him—and remember what I said."

"Mr. Crabtree," began Grace, "would you possibly consider setting aside our agreement of yesterday? It was made in great haste, on the spur of the moment; and Mr. Clark's reminder me that in a previous conversation I had practically promised him the NA brand. Your option, of course, is legal but Mr. Clark feels strongly that he is entitled to the brand; and so, if you will allow me, I should like to buy back the option, giving you a handsome bonus for your bargain. Mr. Clark, as you know, is an old and valued associate, long connected with the North American Cattle company; and rather than deny him this final request I am willing to take a loss for the company."

"It won't be a loss," rumbled Cato Clark angrily. "I will make up the difference to you any time; but I want that NA brand and you gave me the refusal of it. That's why I say you've got to buy it back."

"Yes, but my dear Clark," protested the Englishman impatiently, "you told me distinctly that the remnant of cattle would hardly be worth the gathering. And pray do not forget I am under great obligations to Mr. Crabtree. But for his timely aid I doubt very much whether we could have gathered the half of our cattle, and now, as you know, we have rounded up the whole herd, with the exception of some two hundred head. I feel, therefore, that our company, as well as myself, is his debtor in no small degree; but since you have requested it I shall ask him as a favor to sell back the brand and the remnant. We are waiting for your answer, Mr. Crabtree."

"I won't sell," replied Crabtree shortly.

"Not at any price?" pleaded Grace.

"I will give you a thousand dollars for your bargain."

"No, I don't want to sell," answered the Hawk. "You made me a price of one thousand dollars and I raised it to two myself, because I knew that the remnant was worth it. That is to me, because the settlers are all looks like war to me. Just fill out that bill of sale."

The war began before the last NA herd had crossed the state line into Montana. While the Hawk still waited to begin his roundup of the strays the word came that Clark had struck back. His army of invading gunmen had been dismissed without a trial and once more he was organizing for a raid. For months the captured ranch owners and the hired Texas gunmen had been held under nominal arrest but now, through some legal hocus pocus, they had been dismissed from the custody of the officers. And word came from Cheyenne that, despite the feeling against him, Clark was hiring the worst of them.

The NA had been listed as a rustler brand and, even if shipped, every steer would be seized and the money turned back to the state. The Hawk was still holding his worthless steers outside of town, after several days of fruitless wiring, when he saw Clark's grays approaching. Driving furiously past him, the Hawk swung out on the road and circled back to where Crabtree sat on his horse.

"Well," he challenged, "what do you think of your buy now? Think you can come in here on my range and put me out of business? What d'ye want for the NA brand?"

"I don't want to sell," answered the Hawk.

"Huh! What good are they?" demanded Clark. "You can't sell 'em and you can't hold 'em. And I don't care where you ship 'em, or how long you keep 'em, the market is closed against you. You're licked and you might as well quit."

"I'll hold 'em a while," said the Hawk.

"All right," blustered Clark, swinging his whip over the grays and striking a big circle to drive on, "it's your last chance to get out of the hole." He reined in again and sat glaring at the Hawk through the goggles, smoked glasses of his spectacles, but Crabtree only shook his head.

"There's no use talking," he said. "This is not talk." "I mean business!" thundered Clark. "I mean business! You sell me back those cows or I'll certainly see that you never ship a hoof out of the state. And another thing, young man, there's a herder coming for you if you don't quit your cursed stealing. I don't need no sheriff to get me my rights—I've got a way of my own."

"Yes and a danged cowardly way," retorted the Hawk. "But you can't bluff me so go and get your gunmen—you'll find me ready and waiting."

"I'll kill every rustler in this country!" shouted Clark, and laid his whip across the grays. They sprang forward, fighting their heads as he saved them down savagely, and straightened out for their flight to the ranch; but as they wheeled away Anita Morgaridge looked back and shook her head at the Hawk. — was a warning, but the Hawk's jaw was set.

"Boys," he said, "start these steers toward Fed Fork. I'm going to hold every critter I've got."

Library hour is a popular one at camp as the camp has a library of about a hundred books kindly loaned to the girls by the Carnegie Library of Atlanta. In addition are many of the girls' own books. All girls are practicing for the swimming meet which is the regular event for Friday afternoon.

Saturday, June 27, will begin the fourth and last week of the Camp Fire Girls camp at Lake Bennett. Girls should register for this week at the Camp Fire office, 415 Chamber Street, at 8 o'clock on the morning of Saturday, June 27. Girls will be chaperoned on Saturday morning by Miss Marion Smith on the train leaving the Terminal station at 8 o'clock on the Southern. Tickets to Fayetteville, Ga. Girls not already at camp will be able to attend camp and enjoy this last week by paying the Camp Fire dues in addition to the camp fee. It is expected that many girls will take the opportunity of attending this last week at camp. Many special activities are planned which will make it the crowning week of the season.

Interesting Picture At Children's Matinee.
Seeing a big fire, from the depths of a comfortable chair in a cool theater, is preferable these hot days, says the Howard kiddies, who are looking forward with anticipation to the feature film, "Capt. Jack's Fireman," appearing at the young people's matinee Saturday morning, sponsored by the better films committee, and which has the most spectacular real fire ever filmed.

A monkey comedy called, "School Pals," will prove most amusing while the educational will be the fifth in the "Secrets of Life" series, which are attracting so much attention, this one being the study of "The Butterfly." The audience Saturday will give a warm greeting to the new Howard manager, Howard Vaughn, who has just taken up the work at the Howard, and is very much interested in the matinee, and to Alex Keesee, orchestra director, who has kindly offered to stage the prologues for some time to come, and who has a novel prologue contest to announce.

Mrs. John L. Heston, the new chairman of chaperones, announces for her committee for the coming matinee, Mesdames J. G. Courtney, from Calhoun; Arnold Frank, from Forrest Avenue; P. T. A.; Frank Naele, from the Smith's P. T. A.; and B. H. Wilder, from Commercial High. The matinee starts at 3:30 and the admission is 10 cents.

Miss MacWilliams Weds Mr. Kaufman In New York City

BEAUTY CHATS BY EDNA K. FORBES.

MIDDLE-AGED BUSINESS WOMEN.

This is specially written to Mrs. B.—but as Mrs. B. is a new type and a large one, other women will also be interested. Mrs. B. is the woman who married, ran a home, a child or children, was widowed and compelled to go out and earn money to educate and feed her family at the age when most women are taking the rewards of life and not the burdens. Mrs. B. is anywhere from 28 to 40, and she cannot afford to look whatever her age.

What shall she do? Leisure to rest, to fuss over herself is impossible, money to spend on fine clothes and expensive beauty treatments equally impossible. Yet she must look fresh, rested, alert, without grief, be interested in other's petty problems, she must look successful and above all, young.

I think Mrs. B. is entitled to use every possible means to achieve youth, don't you? If her hair is going gray, absolute sign of middle age, I think she is entitled to dye it—if her hair is the problem—if she can dye it successfully and the dyeing will make her look younger. Hair is always a good dye; it helps rather than hurts the hair, anyone can use it with care; it makes the hair red, of course, and is so much used that we look at it as a sign of middle age. But the aging business woman wants an effect—and hair of any shade but gray will give her the effect of youth. So, I think, Mrs. B. is entitled to dye it—wouldn't she like to be quite frank about it—outside her business circle—just as we are frank now about lipstick and face powder.

"I will talk more about this business woman type in the future."

Anxious—There may be some sluggishness in the action of the kidneys or liver which would account for the puffiness under your eyes. In such cases it is best to have a doctor prescribe for you, but you can help yourself also by drinking plenty of water to keep the system flushed. Take two glasses of water on arising, another two during the morning, and repeat the same procedure during afternoon and evening; this gives you eight glasses evenly distributed throughout the day and evening.

Banditto—Fatten your hands by massaging them with a nourishing oil from growing over them, and if you keep the blood circulating under them through daily buffing.

Edna Kent Forbes is now ready to fill a long-felt need on the part of her readers—that of supplying the most important of her excellent beauty hints in illustrated pamphlet form. To secure this valuable information you must address Miss Forbes in care of this paper, asking for her pamphlet, "Beauty," and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope (s.a.s.e.) and 10 cents in stamps.

In the Garden With Burbank

As Reported by Elizabeth Urquhart

(Copyright, 1925, by C. O. P. All Rights Reserved.)

SIMPLE SCIENTIFIC TERMS.

"Now that I have a little grasp of what is meant by the 'survival of the fittest,' I am asking next about 'natural selection.' I then said:

"Natural selection," said Mr. Burbank, "is the process that takes place when plants or animals fail or succeed in the struggle for existence and the survival of the fittest is the result of natural selection—that is, those best adapted to their surroundings."

"The scientific terms—'natural selection,' 'survival of the fittest,' 'variation,' 'evolution'—are simple enough, but the average man is apt to pass them over as too difficult, when a little time and thought would make them perfectly clear."

"Take the word evolution, for instance, which simply means a development from the lowest forms of plants or animals to higher forms. And this development is a little more than a change in the course of the struggle for existence which has gone on since the world began."

"The old types stayed in the old surroundings, 'survived of the fittest,' and where they were not obliged to change, while the progressive types branched off and adapted themselves to new surroundings."

"After many generations they became a new species, while the intermediate types or 'missing links' which were adapted to neither new nor old environment, disappeared."

"Life is self-expression, a challenge to environment, beginning with electrons and crystals and ending with man and all intermediate forms between plants and animals are stages in the evolution."

Then I felt before long my fifth child was born I had inflammation of the bladder and displacement. Seeing your advertisement in Liverpool (England) paper I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and that was the best confinement I had. Whenever I feel run down I always take the Vegetable Compound as a tonic. We have just moved from Brockville (Canada) so I was pleased when the store ordered the medicine for me and I got it today. # MISS HIGHWAY FIGHTS FOR NAME

Dublin, Ga., June 26.—(Special.)—For its protection, and to enable it to fight attempts now being made to "kick its name," the original Wilson Memorial Highway association voted here this afternoon to ask the legislature for formal incorporation and recognition from the federal government.

Also to its priority over any other association seeking to use that name for highway. A large attendance from towns along its route gathered for the meeting in the courthouse presided over by J. E. Burch, with W. H. Proctor as secretary.

Besides adopting resolutions calling for this incorporation, the association adopted as the official insignia of the highway, a gold star on a blue field, this to be placed on all markers.

A committee to see after the needs of the highway was named made up of John A. Cromarty, Sr., Jeff Davis county; Dr. D. C. Colson, Wheeler county; Erwin Sibley, Baldwin county; S. P. New, Laurens county; George H. Carswell, Wilkinson county.

By unanimous vote the association accepted the invitation of Milledgeville to hold its annual meeting in that city on July 28.

Seven short line or branch routes to connect with this highway were proposed, among them was one going by Douglas, Hartsfield, Valdosta, and another from Augusta to Milledgeville, Savannah, Soperton, Glenwood, joining the main trunk line at the latter place. None of these will be acted upon until a later date.

In 1924, a permission was granted by Mr. Woodrow Wilson for use of the name "Wilson Memorial Highway" on July 23, 1924. The Wilson Memorial Highway was formally organized at a meeting in Dublin, and officers were elected, and the official route chosen, which leads from Hartwell to Milledgeville, by way of Athens, Milledgeville, Dublin and Waycross.

The meeting today was the result of the organization last winter of another Wilson Memorial highway, joining the main trunk line at Waycross, the road to extend through Georgia from Augusta to Waycross and Thomsen. Notice has been served on the Georgia Highway Commission, No. 2 will be opposed, in court, if necessary.

John W. Scott, of Gary, Ind., was elected senior vice commander; Claude L. Gray, Atlanta, first junior vice; Harry Wentworth, San Francisco, second junior vice, and G. J. Brown, of Boston, Pa., third junior vice commander.

A Harbort, commander of the local post of Disabled American Veterans of the World War, has been attending the convention in Atlanta, a large delegation from Atlanta. They went to the convention with the express purpose of bringing it to the Gate City in 1926, it was stated.

LIONS OF GEORGIA TO LEAVE TODAY FOR CONVENTION

A delegation of approximately 40 members of Lions clubs of Georgia will leave for the convention of the International Association of Lions Clubs, which will convene at Cedar Point, Ohio, on June 29.

The party will travel in a special car, and will take to the convention a carload of Georgia peaches to be distributed among the delegates.

Stonewall memorial service will be presented to the newly-elected international officers by the Atlanta club. It also was stated that the Atlanta delegation introduced to the convention a resolution asking introduction of the Stone Mountain Memorial by the convention.

W. H. Spratlin and J. O. Partain, who recently have been elected president and secretary, respectively of the Lions club of Atlanta, and G. B. Karmegay, will officially represent the local organization.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST WOMAN WHO SHOT MATE

Savannah, Ga., June 26.—Mrs. Julia Somellian was bound over to the superior court on a charge of murder following a preliminary hearing in police court this morning. She is charged with shooting her husband, Louis Somellian, who she alleges, had forced her to tell the still he was opening in the kitchen of his home.

On the stand today Mrs. Somellian said the shooting was an accident, that she had discharged the shotgun in the belief that it would keep her husband from shooting her.

COURT VALUES STOLEN KISS AT SIX CENTS

New York, June 26.—(AP)—A Brooklyn justice court jury today decided a kiss stolen from Miss Bella Wiener, 18 years old, of Brooklyn, was worth $6 cents.

Miss Wiener had brought a $10,000 damage suit against Jacob L. Shinsky, of Manhattan, who she said stole her kiss when she applied at his office for a job. He denied the charge. The jury awarded her 6 cents damages.

The Love Cycle

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

THE CYCLE.

What Mansfield told Helen, Jane never inquired, but the following afternoon Helen rang her up for the first time since the old days before the Weston-Marlowe feud had dissolved a friendship of many years standing.

"I want to see you," Helen said. "I want you to come to the house this afternoon. My father will be there. You understand, of course, what a serious situation we have to discuss."

"If you wish to see me," Jane replied coolly, "you know where to find me. It has been many years since I came to your house by invitation; I won't come now at your command."

"Really?" Helen's laugh was plainly sarcastic. "Do you think you can afford to be so independent?"

"If you wish to see me," Jane repeated, "you know where to find me." Shortly after luncheon Helen arrived. She was looking very regal, every inch the spoiled woman who expects life to mold itself to her will. Weston accompanied her. He was grimmer and more formidable than ever and the look he bent on Jane would have made a less hardy heart than hers quail.

But Jane was beyond being intimidated by Weston. She faced him as courageously as she had done that day many years before, when she had accused him of robbing her mother and herself of her father's fortune.

"What's this nonsense?" he demanded sternly. "My daughter tells me that you and her husband are in love. That's a pretty pass, isn't it, when a woman is shameless enough to admit loving a married man?"

Jane turned to Helen. "You had your chance. You threw it away. When I needed help, you failed him. When he stood again on his own feet you tried to drag him down for the sake of your petty social code. I love him and want him to me, or are you going to make me fight for him? For I warn you, I am going to fight."

Helen looked defiant. "Why should I give up my husband to you, whether I want him or not? We have always hated each other, you and I."

Jane came close to her. "Once, a long time ago, your father told me that you said with a silencing gesture at Weston's involuntary movement. 'You have the one chance in your pitiful, self-indulgent life to love a man who would love you, or are you going to make me fight for him? For I warn you, I am going to fight.'"

"You are shameless," Helen flared, and brutal, too. "I am truthful," Jane replied calmly. "I tell you the cycle has swung around again and I take back in a measure what you took from me."

"This is ridiculous," Weston arose from his chair and declared. "Decent women don't talk like this. They don't trade men. They don't discuss taking other women's husbands away."

Jane faced him squarely. "You have never taken anything. Mr. Weston, that did not belong to you."

"Never!"

It was almost on the instant of his denial that Jane's doorbell rang. She answered it, hoping that it was not Mansfield to complicate matters further. It was with difficulty that she recognized the man who stood there, muffled in a fur coat.

"It's Harry," Mrs. Haynes, remembered me? I am passing through your town on my way to Chicago and I stopped off to bring you a few little trinkets that belonged to Ellis. I found them among his effects. A long time after you left New York, maybe you won't want them, but—"

"Do come in," Jane said. "It was kind of you to think of me."

Inwardly, she was perturbed as to what to do with the newcomer in the face of the tense situation which existed between herself, Helen and Weston.

But astonishment wiped every other consideration from her mind when she led Hardy into the living room to reveal him to her callers.

The two men faced each other for a moment in silence, then Hardy said slowly:

"You're making a mistake," he told Hardy with an effort. "I never saw you before in my life."

"That so?" The other man laughed. "You don't remember the little term we served together, you and I. Catie stealing for you, wasn't it? We were on the ranch; you had five years' memory, remember?"

He turned to Jane. "Pardon me for mentioning these little things, but for the sake of old times, you know." He bent over with a short laugh. "You have a pretty crooked deal, once, Mansfield. What is it you call yourself, now?"

"The man is insane," mumbled Weston to Jane, "when you get rid of him, we'll continue our discussion. Until then, 'good day.' Come Helen."

She went with him, dazed and frightened. Jane turned to Hardy.

TOBACCO INQUIRY TO BE INCOMPLETE BY END OF JUNE

Washington, June 26.—(AP)—The federal commission today reached the conclusion that it will be unable to report to the president by July 1, as directed by a senate resolution, the results of its investigation of charges of monopoly and unfair methods in the tobacco industry.

The commission's investigation is being made into charges of monopoly by the American Tobacco company of this country, and the Imperial Tobacco company of Great Britain, and charges that both of these concerns have used unfair methods in dealing with tobacco growers' cooperative associations.

Instead of submitting the report to the president, the commission will advise him by July 1 that the investigation has not been completed and that a report will be submitted as soon as possible.

The commission's investigation, it was understood, has reached the point where tentative reports have been prepared by its investigators and submitted to all parties interested in the investigation, and the commission recently met with these parties to receive criticisms of the report.

TOBACCO FLOURISHES IN HANCOCK COUNTY

Sparta, Ga., June 26.—(Special.)—The tobacco crop in Hancock county is progressing well with prospects for a good crop on the acreage planted. A "weed" has not been adopted as a money crop yet by many farmers, but those who are experimenting with it are delighted at probable results. The tobacco here yields a fine grade of bright leaf tobacco and the tobacco expert on the Dickson plantation predicts that this will soon become a tobacco-raising section. He has a fine crop on the Dickson farm.

Stores, Like Shoes, Should Be Comfortable

AN EDITORIAL BY JAMES WALLEN

An Ohio shoe merchant used to display a store motto which read: "A place for every toe and every toe in its place."

His idea was applied to shoemaking, but it relates to store-keeping as well. Some stores are so crowded with bargain merchandise they are uncomfortable.

Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose believe that the best kind of a business to have is a comfortable one—steady, sure and safe. Such a business need not be the largest in the world, nor yet the smallest. But the secret of its success is clear. Its trade is consistent. Customers come as their needs and desires dictate, with no thought of experimenting.

Such a business can be founded only on quality. A loyal clientele has never grown out of mere price inducements, any more than the glory of the garden blossoms out of shoddy seed.

Just as a beautiful old age can be expected from a life of grace and well-doing, so a fine patronage is the result of years of honest storekeeping.

The homely phrase of the middle states shoemaker fits the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose store. Everything has a place and there you will find it. It is a comfortable store.

Commodity Prices Above Year Ago Despite Declines

Commodity Price Declines Continue
According To U. S. Labor Bureau Survey
For 1924 And 1925 To June

The figure consists of three separate line graphs, each with a vertical axis representing an index from 80 to 100 and a horizontal axis representing time from 1913 to 1925. Each graph includes a horizontal line at the 100 index level, labeled 'COMMODITY PRICES 1913 = 100'. The first graph, 'FUEL-LIGHTINGS', shows a sharp decline from 100 in 1913 to approximately 82 by 1914, followed by a gradual recovery to about 88 by 1925. The second graph, 'CLOTHES-CLOTHING', shows a steady decline from 100 in 1913 to approximately 85 by 1925. The third graph, 'BUILDING MATERIALS', shows a decline from 100 in 1913 to approximately 85 by 1914, followed by a recovery to about 92 by 1925.

The figure consists of three side-by-side line graphs, each with a vertical axis representing a price index from 40 to 70 and a horizontal axis representing time from 1937 to 1940. The first graph, labeled 'FARM PRODUCTS', shows a peak in 1937, a decline to a low in 1938, a recovery to a peak in 1939, and a sharp drop in 1940. The second graph, labeled 'FOODS', shows a steady rise from 1937 to a peak in 1939, followed by a slight decline in 1940. The third graph, labeled 'TOTAL 404 COMMODITIES', shows a decline from 1937 to 1938, a rise to a peak in 1939, and a sharp drop in 1940.

Continued recession in wholesale prices is shown for May by information gathered in representative markets by the United States department of labor. The department's index number, probably the most comprehensive such commodities as rubber, the price of which has been jumping sharply. As compared with a year ago, it may be interesting to note, prices of May showed a 61 per cent advance, miscellaneous commodities averaging 17 per cent higher.

Of the 404 commodities for which rice value, including, as it does, 404 commodities, declined to 155.2 for May from the 156.2 mark of the preceding month. Since 1913 is the base year, this means that May prices were 55.2 per cent above pre-war levels.

In commenting upon the prices of 100 commodities, the labor department noted that while prices in all groups of commodities except house furnishings miscellaneous goods averaged lower than during April, the decreases in all cases were slight. In only one group, metals and metal products, was the decrease more than 1 per cent. Farm products and clothing materials were three-fourths of 1 per cent during May. Many of the preceding groups of other commodities were even less. The advances were 2 per cent recorded in the price

New York, June 28.—Declines in yesterday's cotton market were not fully recovered today but prices made a new high ground for the present movement owing to bullish private crop gures and continued dry weather in central Texas. October contracts added up to 23.78 and closed at 23.75, the general market closing very steady with advances of 40 to 47 points. The opening was steady at an advance of 19 to 38 points on higher Liverpool cables than expected and disappointing weather map. No further July notices were reported.

Four of these reports were issued with condition figures ranging from 75 to 75.5, and crop indications from 5,547,000 to 13,960,000 bales. Earlier in the week the trade here had been talking condition figures of 75 with a
